Filing Your Taxes

Theme 6: Understanding the IRS
Lesson 3: Methods of Filing

Summary

Most people who work need to file a tax return. Benefits of electronically preparing and transmitting tax returns include increased accuracy, faster refunds, and the ability to file federal and state returns simultaneously.

- Electronic filing using tax preparation software on a personal computer is one option. Taxpayers can transmit their returns from home, workplaces, libraries, financial institutions, or retail outlets.
- A second option is to use tax professionals, including certified public accountants (CPAs), tax attorneys, IRS-enrolled agents, tax preparation businesses, and VITA and walk-in sites. Of these tax professionals, only an ERO (Electronic Return Originator) can electronically transmit tax returns. Depending on the tax professional and the services required, a fee may be charged.
